

WHAT ARE AFL SERVICES?

AFL Services offer adults and children with Intellectual and Developmental Disabilities (IDD) the option to live in a natural home setting with a professional caregiver to support them in reaching personal goals and living the life they choose.

WHY CHOOSE RHA?

RHA is a reliable provider with decades of experience serving people with intellectual and developmental disabilities (IDD), and our professional caregivers often report that their lives and the lives of their families are enriched by their experiences.

Because RHA is a comprehensive provider, people receiving AFL services have access to other specialty services that help to meet their unique needs, including behavioral and nursing services.

RHA supports its AFL professional caregivers with highly individualized competency-based training to ensure they have the preparation and knowledge they need to support the person who will be living in their home. This includes RHA's proprietary ProAct training, which focuses on supporting resiliency, emotional stability and problem solving.
