

RESIDENTIAL DISABILITY SERVICES

Thank you for your interest in the residential services RHA Health Services offers to support people with disabilities. We hope this book will provide you a general idea of the types of homes available and the ways in which the people we serve can make their homes their own.

A GOOD FIRST IMPRESSION

Intermediate Care Facilities (ICFs) are beautifully designed homes within neighborhoods. They are spacious and offer many options for accessibility, shared living, and personalization.

A PLACE TO CALL HOME

Waiver homes blend seamlessly into their neighborhoods — indistinguishable from any other home on the street. They are fully integrated into their communities. Because waiver homes are just like any other home, people have the flexibility to choose the house and community that suits them best.

A photograph of a landscaped garden. In the foreground, a pond with clear water reflects the surrounding greenery. A rocky waterfall cascades down a slope, with water flowing into the pond. Large, light-colored rocks are scattered throughout the garden. In the background, there is a green, single-story building with a white door and a white garage door. A basketball hoop is mounted on a tree to the left of the building. The garden is filled with various plants, including a red maple tree and several green shrubs.

FLEXIBLE OUTDOOR SPACES

Many homes have outdoor spaces where people can express themselves, gather, and pursue activities like gardening, fitness, grilling, and more.

EXPRESS YOURSELF

Personal bedrooms are just that — personal. We support people in creating a space that allows them to express their identity, personality, and interests, that will grow with them throughout their life's journey.

Modifications can include things like the foam flooring panels shown here, which support people's mobility.

A WELCOMING HOME

Our goal is that all homes are inviting, clean, and safe with opportunities for adaptability, accessibility, and personalization.

OPPORTUNITIES FOR SPECIALIZED CARE

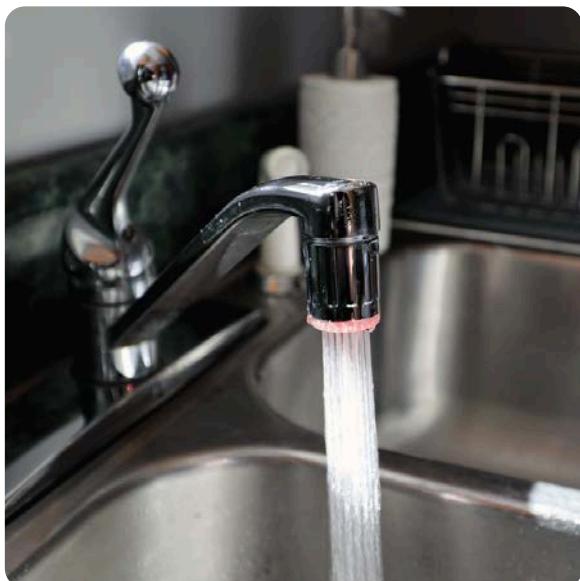

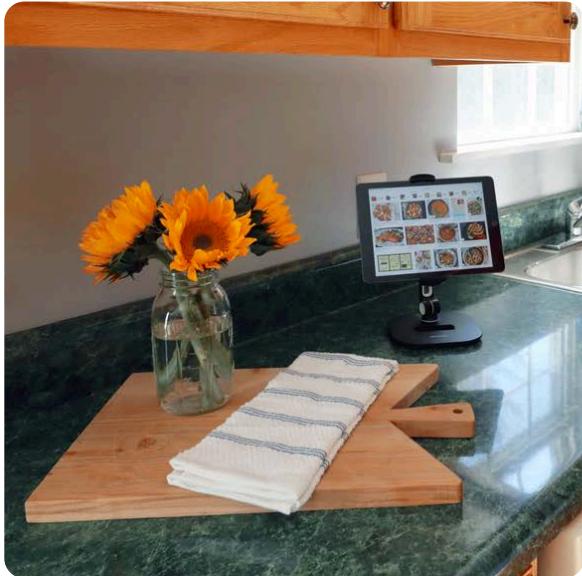

Our medical facilities offer specialized services, including around-the-clock nursing. In North Carolina, these facilities offer an on-site public school option for school-age people.

FREEDOM THROUGH INNOVATION

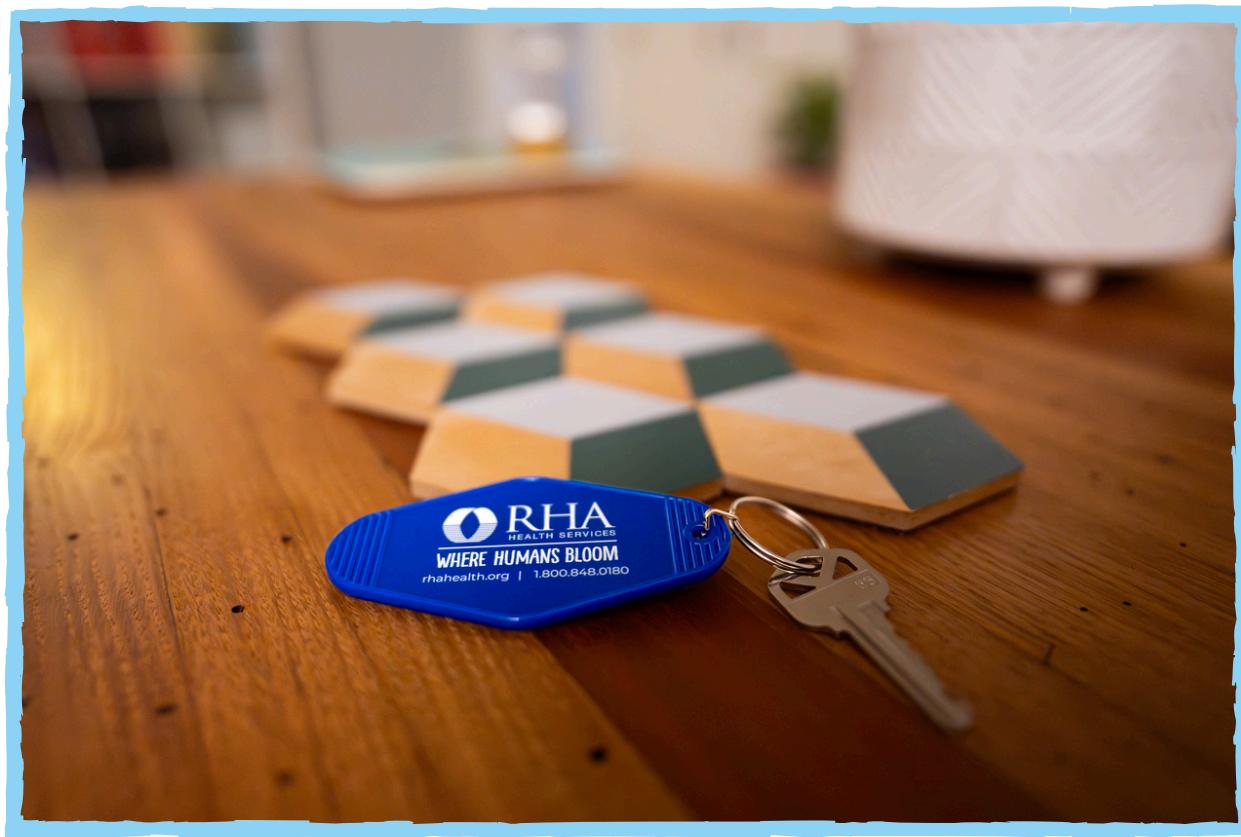

Smart home devices offer people a greater ability to secure and control their homes, connect with others, learn new skills, and manage their day-to-day personal affairs.

Bathroom facilities are spacious and accessible.
